They don't work today. Its a whole center here. I did talk to them though, the walgreens person said it the same cost,same accuracy, but smaller sample - less blood.
You need an order from your doctor to get the test, can't just walk in and get it.

Ok
Do the test

I am actually on my way to walgreens where the machine is, and I will have a list of questions, but wanted to see if we can get a bit more data from them on the system, offering, specs, etc

We have the green light to move forward. They want a list of due diligence questions.

Can u each put together a list and we can merge into 1 email which we can review before sending off to company

thanks
