Thanks Elizabeth. I just saw you called but haven't listened yet.
The universe has an odd way of preparing very special people for the even bigger missions ahead... Not always sensical, but that's how it goes for special people like you.

You are going to help so many people during your lifetime it's absurd. Don't lose sight of that.

My son Will who is at Stanford just flew in tonight to meet his sister for the first time. You'd love him. He's so pure of heart.

I'm so very proud to be your friend. Keep rocking and keep being you.

Thanks for this wonderful note.

So happy for you and your beautiful daughter, and looking forward to connecting --
