Jay,

We sell to a customer that I've mentioned to you several times, where in the past, management had total confidence in the customer. I asked Jim to relook at the customer since Teva does not ship to them. They are a repacker in CA and based on a conversation Jim had with them, they ship to physicians directly. They mentioned that they act as somewhat of a wholesaler?

Do you think it would be worthwhile for us to run this customer by your wholesaler approval process? Even though we are already selling to them? I would be curious to see if anything would come of it.
