Sounds good. Will call this evening. Just a short call between us that maybe leads to a larger group call.

Key question to solve is: can we put together a diverse enough investor/lender group, such that no single investor can demand special terms? Saudi Arabia would do the entire thing of course, as this is strategically critical to their future, but they would require that we build a Gigafactory there sooner than we would prefer. Hopefully, we can avoid that requirement.
